Hermès Window Installation

 Add Comment  Launch Link

I love the simplicity of this window installation created by designer Tokujin Yoshioka for Maison Hermès in Tokyo. Scarves hanging in the window flutter when video imagery of a Japanese actress blows on them. Beautiful. The installation will be on display until January 19, 2010.

Employees Only

 Add Comment  Launch Link

Employees Only is the first solo photography exhibit by Toronto-based Jesse Louttit.

These pictures are part of an on going series exploring people in their workplace and how our profession shapes our character. "What do you do for a living?" The answer to this question often determines a perception others have of us as people. Our job says a lot about us, but the intimate details of our everyday lives can still be completely foreign to those who know us outside of our work, even to our closest loved ones.

This project is trying to bring the viewer to a place and moment in time that is unique and beautiful, yet might be everyday to the subject. My goal is to show employees in a place that gives insight into what they do, while still provoking thoughts about who they really are.
